

You Have a Body Like an Hourglass, and a Face That Could Stop Time

Liferuiner

You're so good at provoking emotions
But that's what you do
You love em and you leave em
But why do I feel like I made the impression this time
It's been over for a long time,
Longer than you'd like to admit
But you just won't quit
Baby it's over, but you won't admit it
You refuse to let me go into nothing
We're nothing, we're nothing
It's what keeps you alive
But baby I'm gone now
You used to be the air I breathed
But after time it just seemed to choke me out
Baby girl I know I was your world and it came tumbling down.
That's right I said it.
But what can I do when you can't read the signs
When all you do now is treat me like a suicide hot line