

47 Ways to Die

Lillian Axe

Everyone wants to try
forty seven ways to die

I used to wear a smile to save me for a while to keep my head above the clouds so everyone would see, the man inside of me the path that never leads you down

But I know, life out-weighs the pain and moments always fade, don't you know we're born to leave a day

Pay the price for better days dawning of a brand-new age

The moments we are born the core forever torn the seconds racing 'till the end pre-determined frown mis-understand the town some things we'll never see again

But they live in sacred hollow halls with eyes that watch for tears as they bathe us cleansing our own fears

As we spiral down we lifted up onto the wings that play tomorrow's song

What can't you see ther with far from the starkerrys looking to set's it's go freeze when you look low seldom here it's not so super ready foots as kiss c ome freeze
