

Most Anything

Lilly Wood & The Prick

Well, I can turn things around and make it better, I do
Let them back, I'm dropping out of the dark
I now feel much stronger, I could fight
Goodbye to life and now [?]

Though I love the way things are going, I know
There's part of me that likes most anything
Though I know what feels good may hurt me, I know
There's part of me that just wants everything
Though I love the way things are going, I know
There's part of me that likes most anything
Though I know what feels good may hurt me, I know
There's part of me that just wants everything

I really strive to be less terrified, I do
I must confess I always fear I'm running outta time
This life is blowing my mind and I'm serious, serious
This really finally feels like I'm out of the door

Though I love the way things are going, I know
There's part of me that likes most anything
Though I know what feels good may hurt me, I know
There's part of me that just wants everything

Though I love the way things are going, I know
There's part of me that likes most anything
Though I know what feels good may hurt me, I know
There's part of me that just wants everything
Though I love the way things are going, I know
There's part of me that likes most anything
Though I know what feels good may hurt me, I know
There's part of me that just wants everything
