Fall In Line

Lisa Mitchell

I've had enough of your stupid games
In case you didn't know I'm not impressed
I hope you know there's a price you pay for putting your friend s to the test

If you could see yourself you'd fall in line
You would see it's such a waste of time

But it's alright to give up the fight
You don't always have to be right
Because sometimes you fall in the night
And stumble around in the light

You know I like you better when you're by yourself
You seem so free
But when the rest of the world comes for tea you're nowhere to be seen

If you could see yourself you'd fall in line
You would see it's such a waste of time

But it's alright to give up the fight
You don't always have to be right
Because sometimes you fall in the night
And stumble around in the light

But it's alright to give up the fight
You don't always have to be right
Because sometimes you fall in the night
And stumble around in the light

Yeah it's alright
Yeah it's alright
