Where Will I Find My Heart Tonight

Lita Ford

I found hunger in the fields of plenty I found freedom in a ball and chain I found madness in the voice of reason I found mercy at the hangman's gate I've held the world in the palm of my hand And watched as it slipped through my fingers like sand Here I am alone again Where do I turn When all I see around me is a lie? If I close my eyes Where will I find my heart tonight? I know all my dreams have fallen on hard times And I'm so cold inside Where will I find my heart tonight? I found peace in the heat of the battle I found treason in the eyes of a friend I found hate in the words of a preacher I found fortune in a beggar's hands I close my eyes and pray for the light To quide my way Into the night, I fall And the world is crashin' down around my soul Why do I turn When all I see around me is a lie? If I close my eyes Where will I find my heart tonight? I know all my dreams have fallen on hard times And I'm so cold inside Where will I find my heart tonight? I have searched a thousand years Through the darkness and the tears And I don't think I can take another night Without you here Where do I turn When all I see around me is a lie? If I close my eyes Where will I find my heart tonight? I know all my dreams have fallen on hard times And I'm so cold inside Where will I find my heart tonight? Where will I find my heart tonight?
