Put Pain to Paper

LostAlone

I love you but I don't think I deserve you You're so pale and perfect I'm a jealous fool I worship at the ground beneath your footsteps Your breath upon my rough neck Your smile at my new tune I like it when we're on our own I'm myself when we're all alone Floating from nine up onto cloud ten Then fall back down to earth again, emptiness ensues Don't regret these feelings that we forget Suitable and seperate in touch and in truth You let me kiss you when we're on our own You let me love you when we're all alone Will the first time be the last time? If so I'm over and alone I'll be waiting for our reincarnation For into my love you to fall Consider these feelings as a trigger We are pioneers of innocence Treasure this morning view I wonder where you are now I wonder what you're doing And if you think of me Don't stop pretending that we're all alone And you shiver good fortune Every time you call my heart Put a secret spell on me From the you own me And the you fall away And I say don't stop 'cause I'm coming for you baby
