

Between

Loudon Wainwright III

Between the forest and the ocean lies a lonely strand
The ocean is your mother, and the forest Fatherland
You are standing on that empty beach not knowing where to go-o
Out to sea or else inland, your whole life you don't know

In between the earth and sky there is an atmosphere Feet on the ground your head up high, but you are stuck right h ere
You're in between your whole life long what happens when you di-ie?

Down below is Mother Earth, your father dwells on high

Honour thy father, and thy mother
Though they're not the same, and one pits you 'gainst the other
It's the cruellest game
You are stuck and you are stranded, you must live until you di-
ie
At home in forest and in ocean, worship earth and sky
At home in forest and in ocean, worship earth and sky!