

Blow Up A Rainbow

Lovedrug

lets start again
and put the wind back in our sails throw down our magic stones on the graves of those gone before us keep the wolves at bay so the children can play outside
lets start again
and put the bite back in the fire we'll watch our tree house burn, the fall of Rome could learn f rom us but when your heart starts its' slowing you know it really hurts my head I can't get far, without you, I'm stone dead
and blow up a rainbow star we spoke in foreign tongues, we watched as spiders spun their d oom
I wanted us to stay like a windy day in June but when you're cold and start your sinking and when your legs get too thin I wonder if maybe you'll be thinking the fishes could take me too
