

Pretend You're Alive

Lovedrug

Oh summer life, oh summer life, crawling with these worms, you're afraid of all their germs. oh bask in life, oh bask in life, the weather gonna swallow you into the great divide, oh enjoy life, oh enjoy life, climbing up those trees and breaking all your knees. Watch angels in the morning become a devil's afternoon. I will panic in the evening underneath the crashing moon. So fall in love while you can still hold your head up high, and pretend that you're alive again. It's friends that leave you here in the end, so hold your head up high, and pretend that you're alive again.

Now autumn brings the beautiful things, where all you give come back to you like the crown upon my king. Your life's a song, so sing along before the silence swallows you and leaves you like a pawn, watch angels in the morning become a devil's afternoon, I will panic in the evening underneath the crashing moon. So fall in love while you can still hold your head up high, and pretend that you're alive again. It's friends that leave you here in the end, so hold your head up high and pretend that you're alive. Your friends, now ghosts, are screaming "Bury us," they said, while panicking, my mind was broken.