

Tainted

Lycia

I remember when I was just a little child
I remember when all of this felt so alive
I remember when I could see and I could smile
I remember when I would hope and I would try I remember when I would stare out at the miles
I remember when I could fall deep in blue skies
I remember when I was just a little child
I remember when all of this felt so alive
now I look around and all of this just feels like nothing now I look around and all of this is so declined now I look around and wonder why my heart feels nothing now I look around and wonder why the blue skies died now I look around, I realize that I've been tainted now I look around, I see the world through blurry eyes
now I look around and all of this just feels like nothing
now I look around and all of this is so declined and all of this is so declined