

Tomorrow's Goodbye

Lynyrd Skynyrd

I'm just a city boy
But there's a small town side to me
And I feel it closin' in
Are we too blind to see
That she's dyin' more each day
And she's cryin' out to you and me

Chances come and when they're gone
They curse the fool who waits too long

So let's take care of what we have
Before the good we know goes bad
And the beauty fades and just slips away
The dirty air, the dyin' seas

Will this be the world we leave to the wild and young
I say, "Just look at what we've done"
And right before our eyes
Today's yesterday could be tomorrow's goodbye

Here comes the rain
It might wash her tears away
But it doesn't change a thing
Like my brother before me
All I can do is write this song
And for her I sing

Chances come and when they're gone
They carve in stone what we've done wrong

So let's take care of what we have
Before the good we know goes bad
And the beauty fades and just slips away
The dirty air, the dyin' seas

Will this be the world we leave to the wild and young
I say, "Just look at what we've done"
And right before our eyes
Today's yesterday could be tomorrow's goodbye

Do you ever think about
The future or the past?
Do you ever wonder
How long this world will last?

So let's take care of what we have
Before the good we know goes bad
And the beauty fades and just slips away
The dirty air, the dyin' seas

Will this be the world we leave to the wild and young
I said, "Just look at what we've done"
And right before our eyes
Yeah, it's right before our eyes
Today's yesterday could be tomorrow's goodbye
