

Things That Have Happened

Martin Chodúr

When the long ago becomes today
And the photographs shine as if to say
We've only come to increase the pain
When the long ago becomes today

People and cars all the same everyday
Got different names but faces that stay
Is that really all they're willing to say
People and cars the same everyday

The woman in love, It's 9am
She's going to work and though a stranger I am
She smiles and she wishes me a good day
The woman in love, It's 9am

There in the picture they'll stay, forever that seems like a second
There ain't no reason to hide the doorway, to the things that have happened

I know you well you have sinned
You caught the sun and the wind
You kept them hidden, hidden and dimmed
I know you well you have sinned

When the long ago becomes today
People and cars all the same everyday
The woman in love, It's 9am
I know you well you sinned again

There in the picture they'll stay, forever that seems like a second
There ain't no reason to hide the doorway, to the things that have happened
