Can this hip hop kid Make something priceless, timeless Or will it all last a month

Can this guitar song
Make it worth it when you heard it
Or is it all just a front

Nineteen years on the road about to go under Felt the breeze of the trees, the roar of your thunder Been a long road wandering for cover Now my cover's blown, I'll find my way back home

I'm walking away, I hear you call my name
I'm walking away (walking away), away from yesterday
I'm walking away (walking away), I cannot stay another day
Walking away from yesterday

Can this hip hop kid Make something priceless, timeless Or will it all last a month

Can this guitar song
Make it worth it when you heard it
Or is it all just a front

Nineteen years on the road about to go under Felt the breeze of the trees, the roar of your thunder Been a long road wandering for cover Now my cover's blown, I'll find my way back home

I'm walking away, I hear you call my name
I'm walking away (walking away), away from yesterday
I'm walking away (walking away), I cannot stay another day
Walking away from yesterday

Nineteen years on the road about to go under Felt the breeze of the trees, the roar of your thunder Been a long road wandering for cover Now my cover's blown, I'll find my way back home

I'm walking away, I hear you call my name
I'm walking away (walking away), away from yesterday
I'm walking away (walking away), I cannot stay another day
Walking away from yesterday

I'm walking away, I hear you call my name
I'm walking away (walking away), away from yesterday
I'm walking away (walking away), I cannot stay another day
Walking away from yesterday