Ballad Of Miss Kate

You gave me your word, then you took your word back Where once I had faith now all I see is black Black seeing black I gave you up rather than giving in Where once there was virtue, it's fallen to sin Black seeing black

You gave me your word Then you flew like a bird Never looking back You can run, you can try But you won't get away this time

You played me for a fool, in your heart you had deceit I made you up inside my mind, when finally you I meet You had turned black turning black I never could have seen how you'd shoot that 44 You hit me right below the shoulder, I fell to the floor I'm on my back, on my back

You shot me with your gun Then you run, run, run, run Never looking back You can run into the street My tire tracks you will soon meet And if you run into the woods I'll chop you down just like a tree

I rolled into town from years spent in my sleep The word that the people held was that your price is cheap Your price is cheap, price is cheap The house with the red light on and fancy decor You built your new life hastily so now I find you poor I find you poor, find you poor

The sheriff found you out There is guaranteed no doubt You ain't coming back We watched you catch a railroad car That didn't get you very far And when you finally met your match We watched you kiss the railroad tracks

Black seeing black
