

Solace and Pain

Matt Nathanson

I'm so confused by what I have and what I want,
But I can't stand alone without your help

I'm afraid of the truth that I might find when I look inside myself,
But I can't stand alone without your help

And what once gave me solace,
now only gives me pain
I over estimated your emotions again

How easily we can fool ourselves and see things that just aren't there Tangle up our emotions until it seems that people truly care It's been out of my hands now for so long and there's nothing I could have done
And jealousy's an emotion that I'll have to learn to overcome
And what once gave me solace now only gives me pain
I overestimated your emotions again
Distance and silence, how do they make you feel?

Well they hurt me.
Well they hurt me.

And what once gave me solace,
now only gives me pain
I over estimated your emotions again