Midnight Storm

Maureen McGovern

There are flowers and fables And old town picnic tables And oil's warm, cozy fires Burning up a midnight storm

The December rains are snowing
But out, your love got us blowing
When I come to see you
Burning up a midnight storm
Burning up a midnight storm

Oh, how it feels to see you smile And how it feels just to know you Like teddy bears and wishing wells That's how it feels to know you That's how it feels to know you

Songs of love are still from one to one Like late-night whispers, they're never done But only written to show I care and I'm Burning up a midnight storm

Burning up a midnight storm

Burning up a midnight storm (Burning up a midnight storm)