Nobody's Home

Meredith Brooks

She can talk for hours words don't cover the scars. She thinks she's crazy, but they've just pushed her too far. She runs to the mirror Only savior she's known Another slap on her face Cause nobody's home.

Mother's always working Slinging beer on the side. Her dad's watching TV And he's still getting high. She knows he'll be waiting Trying to get her alone. She hangs out on the corner Cause nobody's home.

All she ever wanted was a place on this earth She shouts for a savior For anyone to hear her All she ever needed Was hope in a world In a world where she feels all alone cause nobody's home

She cries for attention Hanging on by a thread. She can't stop the screaming going on in her head. Tears on the pillow These are things she won't miss Nothing to believe in So it comes down to this.

Blood on the mirror, Temptation is bliss. Pills on the table, She just couldn't resist. Now nobody's home.

All she ever wanted was a place on this earth She shouts for a savior For anyone to hear her All she ever needed Was hope in a world In a world where she feels all alone cause nobody's home.
