When I hold the key to open heaven's door
I will never make the mistake and give it back when I hold the key to open my mind before it's too late I will never give it back

There's just one way I see the way I think it's right for me you say to me I will repent what I do if it's right I'll stop before

When I see the light of sun will fade away
And I reveal what I have loved before it's too late when I can't see the hours I pay
and I reveal what I have loved before

There's just one way I see the way I think it's right for me you say to me I will repent what I do if it's right I'll stop before

The life I try to give is all I have inside of me it's one kind of life for me this music you hear the strength we have inside is so much more than you will know but if you can't see the life around you'll always walk alone

Look at the drunk man, look into his eyes see his strong hands but tomorrow they will tremble cold as ice see the drunk man, try to ask him why he will laugh, and tomorrow he will tell you another lie there's a fight in his head he cannot win getting stronger, makes him mad, burning sin

You--you cannot hide You--you cannot describe your feelings inside

The life I try to give is all I have inside of me it's one kind of life for me this music you hear the strength we have inside is so much more than you will know but if you can't see the life around you'll always walk alone
