

Autumnal Fires

Mourning Beloveth

A moonlit balcony reveals a majestic beauty "when grief wrapped its cold arms around my body the embers still flickered in the autumn of our love" the sight of your beauty b reaks the hold of sorrow on me

Wandering with passion in our hearts smelling the melodious sce nt of orchards bloom in the midst of life twisting we bleed on a mountaintop, gazing at the evening sky mesmerizing fires breath, eternal life adorning tragedies, the wind carries fatal embrace in harmony Autumnal fire on the horizon for which we've sought Leaves fall caressing our body empty the world we once knew our fires of passion and bliss doused by rains of morrow