Relentless Threat

Municipal Waste

Things may look good for now And you feel that things have tuned around Did you think about the things they said? Will you follow them until you're dead?

We may have called off our attack for now But not foolish enough to let our guard down Some things we never will forget And that's why we'll always be a threat

We'll strike, we'll slay Push them to the flames This threat is not going away

Armageddon's calling because you sold your soul And we'll be waiting patiently to take back what you stole With preparations we watch each step Retaliation! We'll never quit Through persistence we'll resist Until they're all marked off from the list

You fear it's presence It never rests Nothing can stop The relentless threat

And we're prepared to get killed Smash apart the thing you built Bring them down with force We're the soldiers in this war

Defend? You can try the best you can But this threat is too far out of hand

We'll strike, we'll slay Push them to the flames Things may look better now But this threat is not going away
