

fighting against the way we've been conditioned is the pain of life and mind the more we see the more we know the more we can't seem to find... a way of living life free of control without reality being sch a fucking hole where all we have to do is survive with no restrictions on our lives in this situation we're forced to hypocrisy we're made to set rules for ourselves distrust is taught as a way of survival

(follow your heart, trust your head) we've got to accept that we're all alike fascist is anarchist is life, one makes the other and the other is one just reflections of black and white

[ch.]