I have lost control, oh no

Nothing is real I know this cause I made a deal With the devil he told me I was just wasting my time on the moon So I flew to the sun Lost track of my soul on the run Suffering 12 degree burns I learned that the sun was no fun So I ran back to earth Tripped and fell in the glorified dirt Honestly gravity sees me as a liability So I held my breath 'Till my soul left my body for dead I ripped through the clouds to talk to the man in the sky I said take this for what it is I think you're a tad bit prejudice against The ones like us that are searching for the answers He said kid you don't know shit You should go back home and live In that quite little town you left behind I'm coming home Don't you cry (don't you cry) I'm coming home Just in time (just in time) I am a fake A constant go-getter of fate I lost track of time I carried my mind on a plate I seasoned it well With acid and MDMA Then I howled at the moon 'Till the sun burned out both of my eyes So I checked my pulse Standing there white as a ghost I lacked in completion And stabbed my reflection twelve times So I held my breath 'Till my soul left my body for dead I ripped through the clouds To talk to the man in the sky I said take this for what it is I think you're a tad bit prejudice against The ones like us that are searching for the answers He said kid you don't know shit You should go back home and live In that quite little town you left behind I'm coming home Don't you cry (don't you cry) I'm coming home Just in time (just in time) I don't know what I've been told I will sell my soul to rock and roll I don't know where to go
