

Earth Moves

Olivia Anna Livki

The moment you regain your consciousness
Comes the great empty.
Your friends speak to you, your dad speaks to you,
But they just can't reach your senses.

There are signs. Every street every mile,
Standing still like wasted time.
And dreams. Overseas, overseas,
So much wider than movie screens.

CHORUS

You gotta feel the earth move.
For you goodness, your strenght, your youth.
Gotta feel the earth move.
Believe God made a satin roof. And we're all under a roof.
And we're all under roof.

Facing the world's great spaces,
You decided to hide away.
You learned to speak with your eyes,
Cause you don't dare with your mouth,
You're so ashamed of each word you could say.

But you get keen on the beat, on the stream,
Trembling earth before the plane starts.
And you get tired of the tombs, and the sighs,
And someone else's brokedown lives.

CHORUS

You sit the day, you hide away, whatever's coming.
Sit the day you're drunk and gay, whatever,
You'll be wrong or right, wrong or right.
But whatever, ever, ever, ever ever's coming.
Ever, ever ever e-... You know you will be
Wham and bright, warm and bright.

CHORUS

And we're all under roof.
And we're all under roof.
And we're all under roof...
