

Accident and Error

Origin

Exiled in absentia
Left to
Overwhelmed, undermined
Rot in
Carrion call to war
The sun
Sigil of hell, Blistering soil

Crucified for ideals
Or less
Just like before
Benevolent blasphemy
Usurped
Lord of the realm

Feeding the one
Sycophant
To the rest
Gouging hierarchical prose from our history
Taming a land by the knife

A hawk among lesser birds
Plans within plans to advance
Dynamic principles
Persistent faults consequence
World that is about to fall

I am a shepherd of worms yet to come

The keeper of an ever vacant throne
We cannot win
Untrodden paths
We bite the hand that feeds us
With no control and no command
We bow our heads in failure

Prophetic spectacles that led us on
Journeys of introspection
Who we are
Slaves to the processes with no control (x2)

We cannot win
Untrodden paths
We bite the hand that feeds us
With no control and no command
We bow our heads in failure

Determinate plans fed for centuries
Cultivating to wrest the power of global demand
From indifferent mechanisms

Regardless of our intervention
The elements revolt and wipe away
Every shred of humanity
Just to replace and repopulate
And once again the wheel continues to spin

In the deep chasmatic void of the mind
There exists a pervasive
Need to impart a logical world
But the world in which our consciousness
Must behold and beyond
Is an endless expanse beyond a logical core

A last thought in passing
What holds sway to nature
As his planet killed him
Was accident and error
