Goldenface, Morninglight

Pale Young Gentlemen

Goldenface, morninglight bending through my window, a burden on my eyes.

Everything in changing, and I am just alive.

Slip away, unseen, returning to my Kingdom, a newly widowed dream because everything is changing, and I am just alive.

You will make a puzzle out of anything. There's nothing I can tell you my bottled firefly. Everyone is feeling this way.

Soon I wake to a fiery sun and a woman's looking at me like I'm the only one.

Everything is changing, and I am just alive.

Good morning