

Uninvited Dream

Peggy Lee

Uninvited dream, I see him smiling in an uninvited dream
Why does he find me, why does he remind me
That I can't be free, break the chains that bind me to a memory

Uninvited dream, he broke as many hearts as ripples in a string
Now ever after, must I hear his laughter
Ringing in my ears, bringing me those uninvited tears

Everywhere that I wander, he is walking with me
Every Starway out yonder knows I'll never be free

Still, I must confess, I hate to lose the only thing that I possess
And I've told him, it's a thrill to hold him
Strange as it may seem, even in an uninvited dream
