

Porton Down

Peter Hammill

Won't hear a sound at Porton Down, the clear liquids keep their silence, buried underground at Porton Down the fast form of th e final violence.

Quite right to be worried about the proliferation of nuclear bo mbs and power stations, but there's a deterrent that's going to unearth us yet...

Hurry on round about Porton Down, a quick glimpse of the future warfare hidden under ground at Porton Down; far too frightenin g to utter what you saw there.

They got bacteria to drop us where we stand, they got diseases still unknown to man, they got the virus and a microgram's enou gh to do in a continent.

The ultimate madness, just one shattered test-tube to wipe out the world.

It begins with the mustard gas, it proceeds to Hiroshima. The c ulture moves on - now it's bacterial, truly insane. Porton Down waits to fever the brain.

Won't hear a sound at Porton Down, the clear liquids keep their silence buried underground at Porton Down, the fast form of th e final violence. Hurry on round about Porton Down a quick glim pse of the future warfare, hidden underground at Porton Down, f ar too frightening to say what you saw there.

No sound at Porton Down, from Porton Down, after Porton Down.
