Manic

She breathes in She breathes out She wakes up and lays down She can hardly speak and so she screams

I won't give again because she takes so often

Nothing I say will wash it away I'm standing in the pouring rain You say it won't happen again You're manic, manic There is a chemical in your brain It's pouring sunshine and rage You can never know what to expect You're manic, manic

She loves you and hates you You break down She feels good She will bleed from insecurity

When will she heal from this I love her still

She's got everything you want She's every little thing you're not, yeah Plumb