Don't You Know

There's no much time to talk in All your friends are going to walk away If there was time to talk in All too soon you'd be lost for things to say

Don't you know she could break you ? Every bone that's inside of you Then again she might make you Everything that you want her to

And if you could walk away Where would you go, anyway ? And if you've still got the chance I know you'll stay. Stay

I don't need your excuses How you tried of trying to stay on top So just lie back and enjoy it And save your tears for when the kissing stops Oh you know it's got to stop