

Notice Me

Quinn XCII

You stand in the middle
Always surrounded like the Sun
And I'm stuck stranded on planets
Where I swear I'm the only one who notices me
Somebody notice me
Standing quite politely
I'm on the dark side of the moon
And I'd say something, but I'm too scared
So I'll just chill in my room
Hopefully
Someone will notice me

Maybe I'll find comfort on my own
Maybe I'll live in a quiet home
Maybe I'll just settle down and leave
These dreams alone
If all of this makes perfect sense to me

Then why does it hurt so bad
That nobody knows my name here?
Why does it hurt so bad
That nobody wants to stay here with me, with me?
I'll never know why they just won't
Notice me, notice me, notice me

One day, I'll be better at expressing these things to you
One day, I'll find something I'll put all of my heart into
But for now
That remains to be found
One day, I'll just wake up and my life will be okay
And all the colors in my room will fight against the grey
But tonight
Things remain black and white

Maybe I'll find comfort on my own
Maybe I'll live in a quiet home
Maybe I'll just settle down and leave
These dreams alone
If all of this makes perfect sense to me

Then why does it hurt so bad
That nobody knows my name here?
Why does it hurt so bad
That nobody wants to stay here with me, with me?
I'll never know why they just won't
Notice me, notice me, notice me

Notice me, notice me, notice me
Notice me, notice me, notice me
