Overwhelmed

Rachel Platten

We make patterns out of stars and we whisper little prayers To be somewhere that we're not and if we're good it will take us there

But then the light comes through the dark and our questions fall apart It's just the beating of our hearts and the still of the midnight air

And I get so overwhelmed till it's hard to tell what I'm thinking

We get down down down we feel sorry for ourselves we get down down we all need somebody's help Let's get loud loud till there's love and nothing else 'Cause the more that you give the more that comes back around

So we hide away our hurts and put bandaids on our fears and we lie to all our friends move along there's no problems here but then the orchestra will start and the violins appear and a simple little melody has us fighting tears

And I get so overwhelmed till it's hard to tell what I'm thinking

We get down down we feel sorry for ourselves we get down down down we all need somebody's help let's get loud loud till there's love and nothing else cuz the more that you give the more that comes back around

But the hardest part is the way things are and how quickly fingers will bleed and the grace we need is not in magazines, it's just space, in between, when we breathe

I am down down down I feel sorry for myself I am down down down and I need somebody's help let's get loud loud till there's love and nothing else cuz the more that we give, the more that comes back

Down down down We feel sorry for ourselves We get down down down We all need somebody's help Let's get loud loud till there's love and nothing else 'Cause the more that you give the more that comes back around
