If It's Love (Then Bet It All)

Ray Price

You could build a wall around you now no one would blame you Everyone would sigh and sympathize for what you've been through You could count the feelings that he walked on as a reason to 1 et it in

Or count it as a ribbon in the race that you've been running wh en you win

But if it's love that you're playing for bet it all
There's no way to save your pride
Or leave a cushion for yourself should you fall
If it's love that you're playing for play to win
A heart is only broken when it loses the desire to try again

But you could build a wall around you know no one would blame y ou

Those who gather round would not look down although they're see ing through

You could let the sorrow that you're feeling be tomorrow's poin t of view

Or you could let the feeling that you're hoping for be what's guiding you

So if it's love that you're playing for ah bet it all... You could build a wall around you now