

Long Night Moon

Reckless Kelly

Sleepless nights where the stars above are drowned out by the city lights and I wonder why I keep torturing my soul beneath this urban sky but in my mind I know I'll be home soon surrounded by the winter beneath the long night moon

Far away she tells herself to hang on just another day
She knows there's wrong
When they say it's time to give up it's been too long but in her heart she knows

I'll be home soon
Surrounded by the winter beneath the long night moon

And I close my eyes
I see this ratchet city far behind and I'll hold you tight as we lay there in the silence of the longest night

But time and space can linger on without a trace and time goes by and it's too late to ask if or wonder why

I remind myself that I will be home soon
Surrounded by the winter beneath the long night moon
