Harry was a bus driver
He was a very forthright man
He'd run down the road, right over a dog
Before he'd change his path

And then he met lovely Loraine
They had a rough and tumble lad
And it didn't come easy but the boy learned to play
On a twelve pound pawn shop axe

And everybody sing loud and shout Dreamy haze pop stars The boys came about that Mersey beat sound Of crude little sketches of guitars

Well, they heard of a sound from a faraway land That was ruled by a cricket and a king But a pauper's son would one day come From twenty-five Upton Green

And there everyday was a place to play When the final bell had rung And when the big day come, he was just too young And they sent 'em all back home

Everybody sing loud and shout Dreamy haze pop stars The boys came about that Mersey beat sound From crude little sketches of guitars

Well, the wild ones don't think much of Johnny Yeah, a critic's got it rough And you're a real king mixer but it's my train mister If you think that's all I've got

Well, you'll be beaten on down by Mersey sound And then you'll have to choose Between standing on your own or singing right along With the ones no better than you

So everybody sing loud and shout Dreamy haze pop stars The boys came about that Mersey beat sound Of crude little sketches of guitars

Everybody sing loud and shout
Dreamy haze pop stars
The boys came about that Mersey beat sound
Of crude little sketches of guitars
