

Sometime Somewhere

Regine Velasquez

We speak but the words we say mean nothing
We smile but the smiles we give are wanting
We look upon each other's eyes
No spark, no glow, no real signs
But we both know this is all for show

Until that sometime, somewhere
We could show the world we have each other
Sometime, somewhere we need not hide our feelings
We just keep on believing that we both have the time together
Sometime and somewhere, our lips would be free at last
You say the words we've hungered to say
And we won't have to worry, we smile we won't say sorry
One look and we have cast our fears aside

Sometime, that sometime will turn to forever, for all time
Somewhere, our somewhere would not just be one place
But everywhere

Until that sometime, somewhere
We just have to be content with stealing glances
Somehow, content with saying nothing
Smiles are always wanting
Though deep inside it hurts
Because we know that our love, like love
Is what it is, it's what we got
Our love, like love we'll have to wait
Until that sometime, somewhere

Sometime, somewhere
We just have to be content with stealing glances
Somehow, content with saying nothing
Smiles are always wanting
Though deep inside it hurts
Because we know that our love, like love
Is what it is, it's what we got
Our love, like love we'll have to wait
Until that sometime, somewhere
