Song Of Scheherazade

Renaissance

Sultan king cruel majesty Ordered that his women die A single night this for all his wives Takes his pleasure then their lives

And so for many days with the dawn The sultan had his way Wives were put to death His name on their dying breath

Then one day as the evening came Sultan sends for him a wife Choose her well charms I wish to see Bring her, send her in to me

Then came Scheherazade to his side And her beauty shone Like a flower grown Gentle as he'd ever known

Scheherazade bewitched him With songs of jewelled keys Princes and of heroes And eastern fantasies

Told him tales of sultans And talismans and rings A thousand and one nights she sang To entertain her king She sings, Scheherazade, Scheherazade, etc

"The Young Prince And The Young Princess As Told By Scheherazade"

And you would cause the sun to see your light And then be shamed You cover darkness with a thousand secret flames With your love, oh my love, oh my love, my love And I would cause the winds to blow a hundred different days And bring the perfumes of the gardens of the ways Of your love, oh my love, oh my love, my love

Crystal and the clay, nights and the days All on the prince's seal Eagle of the sky, lion of the earth This is what the seal is worth, what the seal is worth Holds all of the dreams of a man Tapestries, wishes of man, pictures and visions of man The spirit of the soul of the man And he would vow to love her for the rest of all his days
