The Mystic and the Muse

Renaissance

Out of the corner of my eye I see the moon And nine goddesses dancing In the silver light on pillars in a fiery garden One gently said that I must follow her And so I left the strange and lonely life I knew Beckoning and in a truth And the sound of sunlight through a stormy sleep Has led me to my Muse High in that light ceremonial bloom The world and its wonders revealed Down from the mountain the Mystic appeared His words absolute and so pure My situation and my dreaming are all one Hear the fanfare of the dawn A lesson that was waiting to be learned From the Mystic and the Muse From the Mystic and the Muse When stillness weaves my sleep I lay quietly Floating gently in a velvet sea Feel the greatest presence I have yet to see Feel the greatest presence I have yet to see High in that light ceremonial bloom The world and its wonders revealed Down from the mountain the Mystic appeared His words absolute and so pure My comprehension and my dreams were all in flame Was this all a timeless game? Some are moving, lying, crying loud and clear Master Mystic, Goddess Muse Master Mystic, Goddess Muse
