The dead city of men Rises against a blackened sky Rancid cancerous flesh, The scent of decay where afflicted lie. Radiation -The blaze of sun shears through the clouds Ripping torment -In polluted wastes mutations abound. Soul-sick men, barred from reason, Perverted beyond consciousness, Deranged, no longer rational, Deluded fools filled with ignorance Animal instincts Irreconciled with mental constructs Dual existence, Entangled in self-conflict Immersed in sickness I scream my disgust in a deafened void. Overcome with weakness, Stifled by the poison of corporate lords. Driven into deprivation, Tortured son of a bastard nation. Unrestrained industrialization Self assures destruction. Trapped in a colossal labyrinthine citadel, All else has ceased to exist. Frenzied, frantic, violent, panicked Succumbed to hopelessness.
