

That Which Consumes All Things

Revocation

It fell from the heavens and brought with it blight
Contaminating the soil, feeding on fauna and flora alike
But this glowing meteorite was but a harbinger for something worse
For within was a womb of pure chaos that gave birth to the curse

Withering on the vine
Flourishing with decay

The corruption spreads across the lands
Black roots writhe in the earth below
A graying harvest falls to waste
Unhallowed radiance gleams from sickened oak

Suffocated by maddening vapors
Gestating in underground chambers
Formless, a monstrous constellation
That which consumes all things into its toothless maw
Amorphous, ghoulis miasma
Devouring all lifeforms within its vaporous jaws

Churning clouds of chaos
A living maelstrom
Not of this world
Born from the backwards beyond
