Rust

Richie Kotzen

Tell me please how a woman can move you in so many ways then she leaves you alone to let you know how it feels I know I was wrong to you but these days are much too hard

The best years have found a home Fallin the corner of my mind I know we're not gettin no younger, aint no use hidin what I know it's better to lose at love then to have never loved at all tears wont do me no justice, theres only rust in my eyes

I'm on my knees every night prayin for you in my life and now I see very clear what it was I sacrificed Well if I knew what I had from the start I'd have never never let it go this far

All my life I've been hangin on, but the time ..the time is right... and I am really all right...yeah