

Strength

Richie Kotzen

I came to live here, I came to find some
This place was hopeful, this place was my home
Somewhere I fell short from where I started I needed so much more to believe in

You saw me reachin', somebody fallin'
And gave me so much more to believe in

You lift me up, there's too much pride to let go
You came and rescued my soul, you give me
strength to go on livin'

I woke inside of a room with no one
What I thought was livin', was really dying
My arms were tired and faith was broken
But you gave me so much more to believe in

You lift me up, there's too much pride to let go
strength to go on livin'

How many people are far gone, how many people are too strong
I don't know anything, I'm losin' my head to this world
You are my soldier of fortune

I froated face down in my own torture
And then came so much more to believe in

You lift me up, there's too much pride to let go
You came and rescued my soul,
This is the face of my own
And there's too much pride to let go,
You came and rescued my soul
And there's too much pride to let go, you give me
strength to go on livin'
