

Smile

Rie fu

Smile just a little bit, I've been pretending I don't notice

Under an umbrella, my speaking voice saw off a blue shadow

Cry just a little bit, I've been pretending I don't notice

My heart's interior becoming transparent - we almost understood each other, didn't we?

Why is it that we keep missing each other like this?
I'd really like to know where your feelings are!
(I wanna see you smile)

Neverending things - though I know they don't exist
When I get lonely, I feel like it would be wonderful if we could quietly warm each other

Why is it that each time I seek warmth like this
I wonder if childish uneasiness will ever stop
(I wanna see you smile)
Just raise your head and smile

Smile just a little bit, cause we're almost making this work

Why is it that each time I seek warmth like this
I wonder if childish uneasiness will ever stop
Why is it that there are expectations of happiness like this?
I wonder if my bottomless wishes will sparkle and get dirty
