

Zero Hour

Rise to Fall

It's the zero hour, the time has come to deal with everything that has been challenging you for so long

It expresses nothing, but it contains all it's clearly connected to the natural movements that govern your growth

It symbolizes the circle that contains totality, the cyclical dimension of the path of clarity

We go through the same situation in (different) moments of our life

The same tests over and over again, until we get through them

You think you've done it all, that there's nothing else to learn

You take for granted that all your faults were burned in hell but when you least expect them, they come back to you like a stubborn boomerang that never wants to leave

It symbolizes the circle that contains totality

We go through the same situation in (different) moments of our life

The same tests over and over again, until we get through them

Face what you believed to be extinct and win the battle against yourself

We go through the same situation in (different) moments of our life

The same tests over and over again, until we get through them