

Take What You Need (From Me)

Robin Trower

You are calling with your burning eyes
Your shining face
My will is lost in your embrace
You're the welcome of the distant sea
The siren song
The fatal wave that calls me on
And the circles grow with every stone we cast
As the sound of warning fades into the past

Take what you want from me
Take what you need from me
Take hold I'm falling free
Take what you need from me

I am captive I am hypnotised
You leave no choice
I hear no danger in your voice
I am prisoner of my innocence
I face defeat
You make demands I have to meet
And we stand and watch the Gods and Idols fall
As the blameless ones go blindfold to the wall

Take what you want from me
Take what you need from me
Take hold I'm falling free
Take what you need from me

And we stand and watch the Gods and Idols fall
As the blameless ones go blindfold to the wall

Take what you want from me
Take what you need from me
Take hold I'm falling free
Take what you need from me

Take what you want from me
Take what you need from me
Take hold I'm falling free
Take what you need from me
