It's Lonely Out

Rodney Crowell

It's lonely out, I can feel the distance
It's lonely out, it almost takes your breath
It's lonely out, like circles round street lanterns
It is lonely out

It's lonely out, the clouds are silver shining It's lonely out, the wind is picking up It's lonely out, the air seems so uncertain It is lonely out

The telephone is ringing and there ain't nobody there The window shades are keeping out the dark The light of night surrounds you as you walk across the floor Some uninvited knock upon your door Turning all your thoughts into a roar

It's lonely out, and the moon is almost empty It's lonely out, and the shadows cannot hide It's lonely out, and it's sneaking up behind you It is lonely out

It's lonely out, I can feel the distance It's lonely out, it almost takes your breath It's lonely out, and it's sneaking up behind you It is lonely out
