In Scandinavia I saw something in your eye As the night came down in a Nordic sky Walking in ways of summers past Touching other lands The wind filled sails She stayed to make the moment last There's nothing new beneath the sun We watched it rise In morning skies of fire and wine The boats that carried us Young golden lives Leaving on a rising tide Here we stand in Scandinavia We stand right now Hold my soul Let it carry me