

There's A Need

Runrig

from the core of the dark to the spark of the heart
there's a need

sons falling into souls ships breaking on the shore
there's a need

it's the way her eyes were cast through the sockets of the past
there's a need

from the west to the east from the famine to the feast
there's a need

from the strong to the weak from the desert to the streets
there's a need

from the left to the right from the darkness to the light
there's a need

from the governors of war to the pawns who heed the call
there's a need

she's sleepwalking with the damned a photo etched in her hands
there's a need

we're all waiting in the night together for the light to take us there the promise of a greater fate
with all your dreams complete in the warm last place

we are many millions more we have not been here before
there's a need

we've come so far so fast and the first are now last
there's a need

from the little child in arms to the leaders of the land
there's a need

hopes are towers in the skies dreams are wings taking flight
there's a need

it started rising round the world like any other sun to start a day
the promise of a greater fate

with all your dreams complete
in the warm last place