Rain

Let it rain a day, a week, a year Let it rain a thousand years a day That's the divine answer to all the shed tears That's the cyclic flood well known by those who know One drop for every broken dream And one for every conceived plan

Our seeds sown larger Our roots will go deeper Our trees will grow higher And now we wait the rain

Let cry the skies to cleanse the souls Let fall the seas to wash the pain away That's the final run to the New Age That's the first step beyond the threshold of this world One drop for every broken dream And one for every conceived plan

Our seeds sown larger Our roots will go deeper Our trees will grow higher And now we call the rain

Here rings a warning A day of wrath For all the days of war A storm of fury To calm the hunger left

Our seeds sown larger Our roots will go deeper Our trees will grow higher And now we bring the rain

Our seeds - larger Our roots - deeper Our trees - higher And we - stronger
