

Are You Alright

Samiam

You quit them
But old habits aren't hard to find
You never know
Maybe this is gonna be one of those good old times

Wasted just a reminder
Tried to take a side street all the way back home
Stranded in a parking lot isn't what you had in mind

Calling someone to come and save you
Check down the list of people that you know
Skipped over mom and dad thinking I might understand

You failed to mention that to me before
You dragged me out into the night
To meet you at the hospital
To see if you were alright
Well are you alright

Changed your address and your number
Got a new job maybe he'll leave you alone
How is it you always end up with the same fucking guy

Going places
You know you shouldn't be with people you barely even know
Then you come back with sorry stories about your new friends

You failed to mention that to me before
You dragged me out into the night
Chasing down your ambulance
To make sure you were alright
Well are you alright
