I Can't Wait

Sara Groves

When you reach the proper age I will teach you to read and you can turn the pages How to dress and tie your shoes Your one plus ones, and your two times two's And you'll teach me Of hearts and dreams And all the most important things And all that i have lost along the way And I can't wait

As you grow, I'll show you things How to ride your bike and kick your legs out on the swings To fold your hands and bow your head How to say your prayers before you go to bed And you'll teach me Of hearts and dreams And all the most important things And all that I have lost along the way And I can't wait

How do you sleep so peacefully? How do you trust unflinchingly? How do you love so faithfully? How do you dance so joyfully? Oh you'll teach me Of hearts and dreams And all the most important (essential) things And all that i have lost along the way And I can't No I can't Come teach me Of love and dreams And all the most essential thing And all that I have lost along the way Cause I can't wait
